

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOLUME XIV.

AT THE GRAVE.

THE SECTIONS AND THE PEOPLES
MEET AND KNEEL.

To Mingle their Tears over Humanity's Loss; to Pay Tribute to One Who Had Justly Won It; and to Renew the Broken Bonds of a Common Brotherhood.

BACK INTO THE BREAST OF HIS MOTHER EARTH.

But Cherished in Undying Memory on the Tablets of the People's Hearts, Garfield's Name is Nicked by those of Earth's Bravest,
Tenderest and Best.

WHILE THOSE WHOSE LOT IT IS TO LIVE AND MOURN,

Look Back the Musty Ages in Vain for One to Place
Beside Him, and in the Vista of Future
Name is Seen that Will Shine with Brighter Lustre than that of Garfield.

CLEVELAND, September 25.—As the evening passed Saturday night, there was but little diminution of the throng that encircled Monument square. The east and west arches were surrounded by people, who gazed into the catastrophe aided by the glare of numerous electric lights. Inside of the pavilion were six Knights Templar and a squad of the Cleveland Grays on guard duty. At midnight but few scuttlings and workmen remained inside the pavilion, though many interested people were yet on the streets outside. The scene was singularly impressive. At this hour there is almost perfect silence—the bright glare of the lights, the ceaseless movements of the soldiers, the sobbing of the wind through the trees and shrubbery combined to create a feeling of awe in the breasts of the spectators. Yesterday was bright and beautiful though rather warm. The streets began to be thronged very early. People poured into the city by every avenue of approach, and all the railways ran every available car to accommodate the unexampled crowd. The vast concourse were allowed to pass four abreast with heads uncovered and look at the casket. It is estimated that not less than 100,000 people passed through the pavilion in this manner. At dark electric and candle lights illuminated the scene, and people will be allowed to go through all night. The line of people waiting the turn to enter the park stretched west for about half a mile, at times reaching nearly across the viaduct over the river. Perfect order prevailed, everybody being imbued with the solemnity of the occasion. The coffin was not opened, it being the widow's wish that his face should not be exposed on account of his unnatural look, but instead that the visitors should look upon the features of the dead depicted in an admirable portrait placed just above his head.

THE DAY OPENS BRIGE.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, September 26.—The early morning sky was cloudy, but by eight o'clock the heavens were clear, and the day now bids fair to be all that could be desired, excepting that it is extremely warm. The city is much over-crowded, all the hotels being overrun with guests, and notwithstanding the hospitals which have been extended by the residents, many find great difficulty in obtaining meals or lodgings. Arrangements have been made all along Euclid avenue to supply the thirsty multitude in the procession as they pass. Firemen are being stationed at the different fire plugs and will draw water therefrom constantly for distribution along the line of march. Many citizens along Euclid avenue also made arrangements to distribute lemonade to those in the procession. The scenes throughout the entire city during the morning, notwithstanding the unavoidable bustle and confusion, were very impressive. The immense multitudes thronging the streets, so orderly and apparently deeply impressed with the solemnity of the occasion.

Promptly at half-past ten o'clock the ceremonies at the pavilion began. The dimmed members of the family and near relatives and friends took seats about the casket.

J. P. Robinson, president of the ceremonies, announced that the exercises would open with singing by the Cleveland vocal society of the "Funeral Hymn," by Beethoven. Portions of the Scripture from the burial service of the Episcopal church were then read by Bishop Bedell, of the Episcopal diocese of Ohio. Rev. Ross C. Houghton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, then offered prayer. The vocal society then sang as follows:

"To Thee, Oh Lord, I yield my spirit.
Who breeds in love this mortal chain;
My life I but from Thee inherit,
And death becomes my chiefest gain."

In These I live, in These I die—
Content for Thou art ever nigh."

THE ADDRESS BY MR. ERRETT.

Rev. Isaac Errett, of Cincinnati, then delivered an eloquent address, taking for his text the following:

"And the archers shot King Josiah, and the king said to his servants: 'Pave me a way, for I am sore wounded.'

He said: "There was never a mourning in all the world like unto this mourning. It was not speaking extravagantly when he said that as a result of calculations carefully made from such data as are in our possession that certainly no less than three hundred millions of the human race share in the sadness and lamentations and sorrow and mourning that belong to this occasion here to-day. It is a chill shadow of a fearful calamity that has extended itself into every home in all this land and into every heart, and that has projected itself over vast seas and oceans unto distant lands, and awakened the sincerest and profoundest sympathy with us in the hearts of the good people of the nations. It was worth the while to pause a moment and to ask why this is. It was doubtless attributable in part to the wondrous triumphs of science and art within the present century by means of which time and space have been so far conquered that nations once far distant and necessarily alienated from each other, are brought into close communication and the veriest ties of commerce, and of social interests, and of religious interests, bringing them into a contact of fellowship that could not have been known in former times. It was likewise unquestionably due to the fact that this nation of ours has grown to such wondrous might and power before the whole earth, and which is, in fact, the hope of the world in all that relates to the highest civilization. That sympathy with this nation and respect for this great power leads to these offers of condolence and expression of sympathy and grief from the mightiest nations of the earth and because they have learned to respect and recognize that the nation is stricken in the fatal blow that has taken our president away from us, and yet this will by no means account for their marvellous and world-wide sympathy of which we are speaking. Yet it cannot be mere intellectual greatness, for there have been others, and their are other great men, and asking all that the most enthusiastic heart could claim from our beloved leader, it is but fair to say that there have been more eminent educators; there have been greater soldiers; there have been more skillful and experienced and powerful legislators and leaders of mighty parties and political forces. There is no one department in which he has won eminence where the world may not point to others who attained higher and more intellectual greatness. It might not be said, be considered more righteous here than in many other cases, yet perhaps it is rare in the history of nations that any one man has combined so much of excellence in all those various departments, and who, as educator, and lawyer, and legislator, and soldier, and party chieftain, and ruler, has done so well, so thoroughly well, in all departments and brought out such successful results as to inspire confidence and command respect and approval in every path of life in which he has walked and in every department of public activity which he has occupied. Yet, he thought, when we come to a proper estimate of his character, and seek after the secret of the worldwide sympathy and affection, we shall find it rather in the richness and integrity of his moral nature, in that sincerity and in that transparent honesty, in that truthfulness that lay the basis for everything of greatness to which we do honor to day.

The great lesson to which he desired to call attention could be expressed in a few words. James A. Garfield went through his whole public life without surrendering for a single moment his Christian integrity, his moral integrity, or his love for the spiritual. Coming into the excitement of political life with a nature as capable as any of feeling the force of every temptation, with temptations to unwholly ambition, and with unlawful prizes within his reach, and with every inducement to surrender all his religious faith and be known merely as a successful man of the world, from first to last he has manfully adhered to his religious convictions, and found more praise and gathers in his debt all the pure inspirations of the love of everlasting life.

Errett was listened to with close and earnest attention. He spoke for forty minutes, and when closed, a hush for a moment hung over the vast audience.

The Rev. Jabez Hall then read General Garfield's favorite hymn, which was beautifully sung by the Vocal society. The hymn begins—

"Ho, rulers of life's harvest!
Why stand with rusted blade?"

At 11:45 o'clock Dr Charles S. Pomeroy delivered the final prayer and benediction. There were then a few moments of communion and of preparation, The Washington marine band played "Nearer my God to Thee." The funeral procession moved from Monumental park at 11:55.

The six miles of Euclid avenue, through which the procession passed were appropriately decorated in a manner becoming the occasion. Designs were varied and handsomely and tastefully arranged. Life size pictures of the president hung in front of many of the beautiful mansions along the avenue draped with national colors entwined with black crepe relieved by festoons of white. In the lawns in front of a large number of residences tasteful designs have been erected. Broken shafts mounted with simbols, or massive crosses, shields, anchors, harps and crowns were seen on every hand elaborately decorated with evergreens and flowers suitable for mourning designs.

On Prospect street, the second in beauty to Euclid avenue, and other streets leading to the cemetery there was the same universal expression of mourning by the residents. Elegant silk flags trimmed with black bunting from many a staff and broad bands of crepe were streched from roof to foundation on many of the residences. Every available place for witnessing the funeral line on Euclid was utilized. Stands were erected on all the vacant lots and were let out at high prices. Private lawns were occupied by raised platforms and the roof of every house had as many chairs as could be crowded upon them.

At 3:30 o'clock the procession entered the cemetery gate way, which was arched over with black with appropriate inscriptions. On the keystone were the words "Come as best." On one side were the words "Lay him to rest, whom we have learned to love." On the other, "Lay him to rest whom we have learned to trust." The mourners' carriage and those containing thousand of honor comprised all of the procession that traversed the grounds. The cavalry halted at the vault and drew up in line facing it with sabres presented. The guard drew up with the mourners' carriage and those of the cabinet behind.

As the military escort lifted the casket from the car and carried it into the vault the local committee of reception, Secretary Blaine, Marshal House and one of the personal friends we were standing at each side of the entrance. None of the president's family, except two of the boys, left their carriage during the exercises, which occupied less than half an hour.

The exercises in the cemetery closed with the benediction by President Hinman. At the conclusion of the exercises at the grave the mourners re-entered their carriages and drove hurriedly back to the hotel, to avoid a shower which was threatening.

A Curious Compact Between Mr. Garfield and Three of His Friends.

CINCINNATI, September 25.—The Rev. Isaac Errett, who presided over the funeral services of the president in Cleveland, is well known and greatly beloved in this city and throughout his denomination.

He is the editor of the Christian Herald, the most influential paper which the Disciples have. He was a warm personal friend of General Garfield for many years, having been a resident at the northern part of the state before coming to the west, or at some time immediately preceding it, a curious poem was made between four gentlemen, the Rev. Dr. Errett, the Rev. Harrison Jones, of Euclid, Dr. J. J. Redwine. By its terms, Mr. Errett was to receive a certain amount of money and was to make a choice of three persons to meet him at the Lodge meetings as visitor. September 25, 1865, General Garfield was again present at the lodge meetings as visitor. October 10, 1865, General Garfield was elected member of the Lodge. December 1, 1865, General Garfield was received as a member of the Lodge. When he came to the Lodge, Mr. Errett, who was then a young man, asked him if he had been able to find a suitable place to stay in, and he replied, "Yes, I have found a place, but it is not quite so comfortable as I would like it to be." Mr. Errett said, "I have a room at the Hotel Congress, which is a fine place, but it is not quite so bright as I would like it to be." General Garfield said, "I have a room at the Hotel Congress, which is a fine place, but it is not quite so bright as I would like it to be." Mr. Errett said, "I have a room at the Hotel Congress, which is a fine place, but it is not quite so bright as I would like it to be." General Garfield said, "I have a room at the Hotel Congress, which is a fine place, but it is not quite so bright as I would like it to be." AFFAIRS IN GEORGIA,

AS REPORTED BY THE CONSTITUTION'S CORRESPONDENTS.

Letting out Blood in Bainbridge.—Burning of the Dawson Jail.—Sickness in Southwest Georgia.—The Assessment of Albany...Some Social Entertainment Reported from Clay County.

CUTHBERT, September 24.—Clay superior court is in session, holding an adjourned term of the court. There were several important criminal cases to be disposed of. In two cases of assault with intent to rape, involving some of the best families in Clay county, both defendants were cleared, as there was no evidence to show guilt on part of defendants. The regular term of Clay court will be held next week.—It is rumored that Colonel Herbert Fielder has sold his dwelling house and property in this county and will soon remove to Arkansas. The colonel says business is so dull here he can't submit longer.—Nearly all the cotton in this and adjoining counties is gathered. There will not be any cotton in this county to gather after the 15th of October. Some farmers have finished picking cotton. There will not be two-thirds of a crop made in this county.

BAINBRIDGE, September 23.—Mrs. C. Perry, mother of Richard Perry, a good citizen of our town, died at his residence this morning, aged ninety-four.—Nat. Smith, colored, had a quarrel on the ferryboat crossing Flint river yesterday, with Mr. Funderburk, white. The latter struck the former with a piece of plank on the head, knocking him into the river, splitting the sculp six inches and flaying it bare. He was brought up town and the wound dressed by Dr. J. A. Burdette. Had not surgery been done, he would have succumbed to death, as the blood was freely streaming from the ugly wound. Though the skull is not fractured, he is in a critical condition.

Mr. Albert Winter, formerly of Cairo, Ga., has purchased the farm of A. D. Curry, one mile from town, and located his kennel of fine dogs upon it. His partner, Mr. W. W. Titus, has charge of it. They have in training for eastern and western field trials twenty young pointers and setters of the best blood.—The energetic railroader, S. H. Haines, will soon commence the extension of the Savannah Florida and Western railway from here to Chattahoochee, twenty-five miles below us, to connect with the road building from there to Pensacola and Mobile.

ALBANY, September 25.—Quite a number of cases of the hemorrhagic yellow fever have developed about Albany recently. This disease is always a protracted one and in a majority of cases fatal.—Major Wilder has issued a proclamation requesting a suspension of business and meeting of all the citizens to-morrow, the 26th, in different places in the city for holding religious memorial services in commemoration of the obsequies of our deceased president.—The assessors of taxable property, after a careful assessment of all the city property in Albany liable to taxation, make the total amount in their report to be $1,211,762.20, showing an increase of between $70,000 and $75,000 over that of last year. The amount is upon all real and personal property in the city subject to tax.

VALDOSTA, September 24.—A mass meeting of the colored men in Lowndes county was held in the courthouse to-day. The meeting was for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for canvassing the county in view of the approaching election on the sale of whisky in Lowndes. Judge R. A. Peoples was elected chairman, and Mr. J. A. Dasher, secretary. By resolution the chair appointed a committee of three for each district in the county to canvass their respective districts and work up as large a vote against whisky as possible. The contest between the liquor and the anti-liquor men bids fair to be a lively one, and it is impossible at this time to tell the result.

Jackson, C. J.—The title to land being in controversy and the evidence concerning it conflicting, one of the claimants filed his bill to enjoin the other from using the pine trees on the land for the manufacture of turpentine. It appeared that this use, while injurious to the timber, did not destroy the corpus of the estate. The evidence on the question of solvency was conflicting. The chancellor granted the injunction, but provided that it should be dissolved upon defendant's giving bond to answer any valid claim for damages which complained of the injunction.

Held, that there was no error in granting such conditional dissolution.

Judgment affirmed.

Wright & Pope, for plaintiff in error.

L. E. & W. H. Lastinger, for defendant.

Held, that as between the company and the messenger his liability was not that of a common carrier, but that he was an agent and depended on the master or his negligence.

2. A charge not founded on the evidence and likely to mislead the jury was error.

3. Where one employs an agent who is already in the service of another principal with full knowledge of his first employment, and consequently therewith, the second contract must be construed in the light of the duties imposed by the first, and the agent will not be liable to the second employer for a failure of duty if caused solely by the obligations imposed by the first employment.

(a) In this case, this case were not fully and fairly submitted.

Judgment reversed.

Roberts & DeLacy; Jacob Watson; R. F. Lyon, for plaintiff in error.

Kibbee & Martin; C. C. Ryan; Harrison & Peoples, for defendant.

Convers, administrator, vs. Gray. No exact from Bartow. Attorney and client. Administrators and executors. No exact Equity.

Jackson, C. J.—An attorney who has collected money for a client cannot hold the entire amount and refuse to pay over the same because a small part is due to him as fees.

(a) Nor is it any defense to a rule by the administrator de bonis non to collect such fund that the client of defendant was the primary administrator of defendant's estate, and in his sole possession; his bond; that defendant having collected money for the estate paid it over to administrator, who returned it to him to keep to secure him against liability on the bond.

2. Where it was shown on an application for reheat that the defendant had declared his intention of leaving the state shortly before that time and had application to be dismissed from the administration on a certain estate in open court on the ground that he intended to remove from the state, an answer to the effect that the defendant had intended so to remove, but had altered his mind, did not disbelieve at the time of filing the answer, but might change his mind if he saw fit, was not sufficient to prevent the grant of the writ of reheat.

3. Under the facts of this case the remedy at law was not adequate, and there was good ground for equitable intercession.

Judgment reversed.

James B. Conyers; Graham & Foute, for plaintiff in error.

W. K. Moore, for defendant.

Perry vs. Mayor, etc., of Cochran. Injunction.

Jackson, C. J.—The chancellor did not abuse his discretion in refusing an injunction in this case.

Judgment affirmed.

W. H. Wyly, for plaintiff in error.

James A. Thomas, for defendants.

Tift vs. Harrell. Injunction, from Berrien. Jackson, C. J.—The title to land being in controversy and the evidence concerning it conflicting, one of the claimants filed his bill to enjoin the other from using the pine trees on the land for the manufacture of turpentine.

It appeared that this use, while injurious to the timber, did not destroy the corpus of the estate. The evidence on the question of solvency was conflicting. The chancellor granted the injunction, but provided that it should be dissolved upon defendant's giving bond to answer any valid claim for damages which complained of the injunction.

Held, that there was no error in granting such conditional dissolution.

Judgment affirmed.

L. J. Gartrell; Wright & Dorsey; A. B. Culberson, for plaintiff in error.

W. T. Newman, for defendant.

Garrison et al vs. City of Atlanta. Injunction, from Fulton. Criminal law. Equity.

Crawford, J.—Injunction will not be granted to restrain a criminal proceeding.

Judgment affirmed.

L. J. Gartrell; Wright & Dorsey; A. B. Culberson, for plaintiff in error.

W. T. Newman, for defendant.

Everybody is using Brown's Iron Bitters, and everybody is astonished at its many marvelous cures where all others have failed.

The Richmond and Alleghany railroad, the construction of which was begun September 2, 1880, is now complete and being operated through to Roanoke, a distance of 25 miles. This is probably the most difficult work of the kind ever done in the south.—Pineapple Herald.

Mr. Samuel McKenzie, Cumberland, Md., writes: "I am 68 years of age. About four years ago I began to go into decline. I suffered from dyspepsia, stone in the bladder, weak lungs, and nervous debility. Nothing I tried did me any good until I used Brown's Iron Bitters. This remedy has made me again robust and strong, and I feel all the fire and activity of youth once more in my veins."

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 27, 1881.

The breezes played a sad dirge over Lakeview last night.

Mr. BEADLAUGH is at a loss for means of condolence, and wonders what he was materalized for.

PARNELL is still gathering his followers in Ireland. He was yesterday the recipient of a mighty demonstration.

OLD ENGLAND mourned yesterday the loss of the man from Mentor with as much feeling as did his own countrymen.

THE troubles in Tunis are by no means ended. The bey seems to be a man with two faces—one turned toward the threatening Frank, and the other Mecca-ward.

A YOUNG TEXAN was deprived of the pleasure of a dance, owing to the reluctance of a young lady. Straightway he courted the brazen mouth of a pistol—with the result indicated in our telegrams.

THE senate will meet in extra session on the 10th of October, and on the following day Iowa and Ohio will elect governors and other state officers. No other important political events are billed for October, but there is a feeling abroad that the new president will furnish some before the month is ended.

THE passage of a destructive tornado over the prosperous city of Quincy, in Illinois, reminds us that the summer season has lost none of its worst characteristics. The flat country of Illinois is particularly the haunt of cyclones, and it is fortunate that the one spoken of in our telegraphic columns caused no greater loss of life.

THE democrats of the senate will probably make either Mr. Bayard or Mr. Pendleton president pro tem, and the republican candidate will undoubtedly be Mr. Anthony, who the veteran of his side of the chamber. Mr. Bayard is the democratic veteran, but he is becoming deaf and is besides a very poor presiding officer. Mr. Harris of Tennessee, is the real choice of the democrats for the place, but the chances are that policy will dictate the nomination of Mr. Bayard.

THE amer fought and thoroughly defeated the rebellious Ayoob Khan, who fled to Herat, leaving his guns and baggage behind, not to mention two regiments that went over to the enemy. This makes the ruler that England put on the throne master of all Afghanistan, except possibly in Herat and the adjacent country. The cabinet of Mr. Gladstone is again vindicated, and that great statesman has on hand no troublesome eastern question, always provided that the Egyptian situation does not demand intervention of some kind.

THE train robbery in Arkansas shows that neither numbers nor training in crime are required to pillage a train from the rear platform to the engine. Three country boys executed the scheme, and they did their work with as much dispatch and thoroughness as Jesse James ever exhibited. It is now certainly time for the public officials and railroad officials to put their heads together. This new kind of villainy must be met and defeated, or else stockholders will suffer, to say nothing of the already damaged reputation of the country. At present the south-west is an excellent section to stay away from.

AT THE GRAVE.

The solemn and impressive pageant which moved through the streets of Atlanta yesterday, was both responsive and reflective. It was a fitting response of the national character of the affliction which has robbed the country of its most prominent citizen, and it was an appropriate reflection of the deep grief into which the entire country has been plunged by a calamity, the direfulness of which can only be appreciated when the people have time to consider the real loss the country has sustained.

But however great the loss—however defeated the grief, it is fortunate for the country—fortunate for the future of the sections, that the grave filled at Cleveland yesterday cannot cover the influence nor hide the example of the dead president. After all, it was only the mortal man that was taken away from us. The statesman and the patriot still live, and the sections and their factions will respond to the purpose of the president, whose grievous suffering and untimely taking off have done more in the direction of uniting the nation than all else combined. We shall have partisanship hereafter and the bitterness of partisanship, but no matter what attack is made upon the south, there will be no such strife as we have had heretofore. It is enough to say that the men, women and children of the south wept for Garfield.

BIENNIAL SESSIONS.

A correspondent, laboring under confusion that is perfectly natural when all the circumstances are taken into consideration, writes to THE CONSTITUTION for information. He says: "I am a native of Georgia, and I have never traveled much. I do not know that traveling would have helped matters, but I mention the lack of it, as a sort of excuse for my ignorance. I would be glad if THE CONSTITUTION would tell me, without making the matter too prominent, the real meaning of 'the term biennial as used in the present constitution of the state."

The tone of our correspondent's letter would seem to indicate a fear on his part that we will either ignore his communication or treat it with unaccustomed levity. This suspicion does injustice to a well known vein of melancholy in our natures which forbids a flippant treatment of serious subjects. We candidly confess that we know of no more solemn question connected with our political economy than that broached in the letter of our correspondent. It opens up a wide field of philological discussion—a discussion so intricate in all its details as to threaten to tread upon the domain of the psychology of words, in which the Hegelian philosophers of the period find themselves at sea. Our correspondent need not be ashamed of his ignorance. Words are very curious things. Poe, it will be remembered, regarded words as substances, not only vital in themselves, but capable of bestowing this vitality upon other substances and thus aid in the creation of worlds. He had a very pretty theory based on this, which explained how the words of a lover, creating waves of sound in space, finally culminated in the creation of a beautiful star.

Our correspondent will perceive that a word is a very serious matter, and "biennial" stands in the front rank among the big ones. It is a word that will not fit itself to the ironclad imaginations of the makers of dictionaries or the framers of state constitutions. Custom is one thing, and no doubt a very good thing, but the savage and sonorous vigor of "biennial" is quite another. In the early days of the republic there was something so difficult with tri-weekly." A matter-of-fact Georgian was awarded a tri-weekly mail route, but when the time for settlement came, the department informed him that his contract was void and his bondsman liable to a penalty because he had failed to carry out the agreement. The contractor insisted that the terms of his contract had been complied with, and that he had furnished the public along his route with a tri-weekly mail, that is to say that he had carried the mail to its destination one week and tried to carry it back the next. Whether his salary was allowed, we do not know; but in our opinion, he had a just claim upon the government—a claim that may come up to vex some future administration.

With respect to the word "biennial," we think there can now be no doubt of its real meaning and intention, as there is certainly none in regard to its vitality and endurance.

THE BOSTON TRAVELLER says that Edward Payson Weston, of pedestrian fame, is now a regularly employed temperance advocate of the Church of England temperance society.

THE EXTRAORDINARY popularity of the event is easily explained—due to good looks, good nature, and very pleasing manners. She is not in the least intellectual woman.

THE CHIEF COMING.

Baltimore Gazette.

Already there has been a rise in the signs of the times that will be uniting Arthur to break the Garfield cabinet and create one of his own. The blade that is being sharpened for the scalp of Mr. Blaine is hardly concealed, and shows itself in an attempt to get rid of the other members of the cabinet and to put upon the constitution what we are told to the people sense don't the legislators submit to the people a few amendments to that ricketty affair.

GUILTEAU'S LATEST EXPLANATION.

Washington Republican.

GUILTEAU has made a new explanation of his attack upon President Garfield. He explains that he was grossly insulted by the press. These are in substance the circumstances: He (Guilteau) sneaked into the president's office at the white house one day at a time while other members of the cabinet and other officials were there. He was being an unbidden and unwelcome visitor, he was ejected from the room by order of the president. This treatment, Guilteau says, rankled in his breast and he left in his anger. The president had no right to insist in that way. While being ejected he resolved upon revenge, and the infliction of some serious bodily injury on the president.

A RAILROAD ROBBERY.

THREE BEARLESS BOYS HALT AND ROB AN EXPRESS TRAIN.

Hope, Arkansas, the Scene of the Outrage--The Passengers Intimidated and the Treasure Taken--Seven Thousand Dollars Secured--Views and Interviews--Heavy Rewards Offered.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., September 23--Yesterday afternoon three rather good looking country boys, young in years, arrived at Hope Station, on the Iron Mountain road, Hempstead county, about 100 miles south of this city. They spent the afternoon about the saloons of that place drinking and playing cards. At 9:30 last night they boarded passenger train No. 4 bound north, due in St. Louis to-night, in charge of Conductor Whitesides. Two of the robbers got on the train as it started off, and the third, who afterwards proved to be the leader, ran out of Kohn's saloon and jumped on the train when it was moving quite rapidly. He went in and joined his companions, and all took seats in a coach in which were but two passengers besides themselves, a lady and gentleman. There were several extra coaches in the train going back to St. Louis nearly empty. The robbers did their work with remarkable coolness and recklessness. They made no attack on passengers, and carried out a new plan. They told the passengers that they intended to hurt no one, and that that they were accountable for the life of the conductor. They kept two revolvers at his head all the time, and told the passengers that the slightest move would cost the life of the conductor.

Conductor Whitesides, interviewed by your reporter, says he found the robbers in one of the extra coaches, and that when he went to them for tickets one of the party paid fare for all three to Emmett station, the first point north of Hope. The leader spoke the name of the station as if spelled Emmett, showing that he was not familiar with the country. I went on past them towards the rear of the train, when they got up, and, after taking a drink from a bottle at the door, followed me into the ladies' coach. I was talking to a drummer about a thousand-mile march, when the boys came in, with a good deal of noise. They were not masked and I had no idea they were desperados. I turned around to order them to be quiet, when a revolver was cocked in my face and one of them cried out, "Put up your hands; we want your spare change." "I still thought the boys were spicing, and smiled at them, when the leader, jerking his revolver nervously, said: "We mean business and don't want to hurt you, but we want your change damned quick." I turned to move away, when the robber nearest me said, "We'll start you walking." I put my hand in my coat pocket and handed them 46¢ in silver and greenbacks; "greenbacks we want," he continued, and I told him I had none, and they didn't search me; in fact, they searched no one, simply told one and all to shell out. John Pollock, the foreman of the ice cars had nearly $1,000, and got off with nearly all of it, throwing it under the seat and giving the robbers $50. The robbers, after going through the ladies' car, crowded me into the Pullman sleeping car, the passengers in which had retired. A great deal of noise was made during the sleep, and the leader, one of the robbers yellowed out, "throw up your hands." The other conductor came running to the door, and said, "Shut up this racket or you will wake my passengers." The youngest of the robbers threw a gun down on the sleeping car conductor, and told him to shell out. He handed over $10. They then looked into the car, and saw it all made up and no one in sight. They then said, "Don't wake the passengers. Let 'em sleep." I was then told to face about. They marched me back through the train, two robbers behind and one in front. We made no stops until they reached the car where they come now, the engine car. Right away, the robbers, robbing again and went right on to the baggage car. This car, on the night train, is a combined express and baggage car and can not be kept locked. They made me enter the car first with three revolvers at my head. Express Messenger Sam made a rush at us with a revolver, and I was compelled to tell him to stop in order to save my own life. While two of them guarded us the other went through the safe, tearing open package after package, and then took envelopes into the safe. They got out of the safe, however, $1,000, and in their haste overlooked one package, the remittance of the Texarkana agent, containing $15,000. The money stolen was mostly remittances of agents on the Texas and Pacific and International railroads on the way to St. Louis headquarters. After the robbery the men got off, climbed an embankment and told the conductor to leave and be d-d quick about it. Engineer George Stanton, who had been down on the ground watching the performance, then stepped off toward his engine, when one of the gang said, "Quick, damn you, and one of the bullets rattled up under the locomotive. He stopped once, and several shots were fired into the ears, hitting no one. Walter Ford, the baggage-master, got off free, telling them he had no money. A negro passenger said to the robbers: "They done paid once, boss," thinking the conductor was calling on him a second time. The robbers all laughed and left him off. E. B. Owensby, Woodville, Ala., says when the robbers entered the car he was in, several of the men began taking off their watches, when the colonel said, "Let 'em watch and go alone, we only want change." To me the leader said: "Be quiet and easy, ladies, you shall not be molested. We only rob men and not women and children." Owensby, the youngest of the trio carried a dark gun and revolver. The others had a revolver in each hand. All wore coats and hats too large for them and were bothered by sleeves dropping down over their hands. All were young men, the oldest with light black mustache, and not over 20 years of age. Their skin of fair complexion, and rather awkward. Quite amiable, they had small sums returned to them. General Manager Hoxie, Assistant Superintendent Dudley and Division Superintendent Buchanan were on a special behind the train that was robbed. At Prescott Hoxie hired men with horses to pursue the robbers. Between 12 and 1 to day Hoxie had a consultation with Governor Churchill in this city, the result of which was that Hoxie offers a reward of $5,000 each for the capture of the men, and the state offers $500 each. The governor and seven others left for the scene of the robbery at 4 o'clock this afternoon, where pursuit will be continued under the direction of the executive in person. Reports from southwest Arkansas are that the people are up in mass in pursuit of the desperados.

LIEUTENANT FLIPPER'S DEFENCE.

Declaring His Innocence of the Charge of Embezzlement--Colonel Shafter's Conduct.

New York Sun.

Lieutenant Henry O. Flipper, in a private letter to John F. Quarles, Esq., of this city, defends himself from the charges preferred by Colonel William R. Shafter, First Infantry, of embezzling public moneys, while acting commissary of subsistence at Fort Davis, Texas. He says that Colonel Shafter had professed great friendship for him, and had made him believe in his sincerity by retaining him in his office, which he had been appointed by General McStevens of his own regiment. He had been several times warned against Colonel Shafter but never expected the blow to come in the manner it did. "I never expected him," says Lieutenant Flipper, "to endeavor to strike me through my servant woman, who is thoroughly trustworthy--as much so now as at any time since I had her employed." As to the examination of his accounts and the manner of his arrest, Lieutenant Flipper says:

On August 7 I carried my funds for July to his office to be counted, to enable him to sign a certificate to the effect that my account was balanced. The man who takes his family into the country for the summer should remember that he will save his children great trouble if he is thoughtful enough to carry a supply of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. This medicine is a standard specific for all cases of cramps, colic, cholera morbus, diarrhea or dysentery. A teaspoonful is a dose for an adult, but twenty drops are sufficient for a child. The Pain Killer is sold by every leading druggist.

It's hard to think that our girls are growing up untrutiful, but it really appears a fact. While a Philadelphia girl was seated at the piano, entertaining her father, singing a solo, she heard her Mother's voice that same mother's voice came sounding down the stairs. "Mrs. Matilda Jane, come up here and take off my corset immediately. If you're too lazy to sew your shirt won't wear mine."

Mr. H. Platts, Port Sanilac, Mich., lately said: "I have just sold to Mr. John O'Keefe the fourth bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. He says: 'I have a bad cold, and I have to get out of the house to see what bills were unpaid, and I have to pay them off. I have money belonging to the last fiscal year ending June 30. From this I took the requisite amount and put it with the amount required for that month, and let him have it to see what bills were unpaid.' I have another, smaller bottle to him, and he says: 'The next day, after office hours, between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., I got my horse and went to town, Chinohua, to see a marquis of circus, was early, and tied my horse to a post. I sat down to eat, and as the other horses belonged to last year and to 6 o'clock when I alone was a commissary officer. You will observe here a deeply laid plan to entrap me, which I did not notice at the time, or I would have taken more money to put enough with the other to make up the amount required for that month, and let him have it to see what bills were unpaid.'

As we went along he said: "The colonel wants you to turn over the commissary to Lieutenant Edmunds to-night." I said I would do so, and asked him to ride down to the station. He said: "My wife has had the rheumatism in her legs for the past twenty-five years. I have spent three hundred dollars for medicines for her without doing the least good whatever; now her leg is heated up, as sound apparently as ever; the pain is all gone, and we used only three bottles."

What a Cough!

Will you heed the advice of a physician perhaps of the surprise aspect of that most terrible disease consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents to rest in bed, to turn the risk and do nothing for it? We know from experience that Shihli's Potus Plaster is the best. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Medicine does not fit it. For those who sit up, this chest use Shihli's Potus Plaster. Sold by all druggists.

A Leading Professor Speaking of Sensible People.

Dr. S. L. Thompson, English medical lecturer, says: "Every day sensible people come to me complaining of their health being broken down. The answers to my inquiries always are, what I surmise, nature's laws have been totally disregarded; consequently the blood, the stream of life, becomes contaminated, and as a result of this blood poisoning, I find dyspepsia and disordered functions of the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, accompanied by headache, nervous debility and other impaired organic portions, often verging on paralysis. In order to keep the digestive organs in proper health and strength, I and my students have adopted the following rule: Eat a large portion of the morning meal, and a small square square. He therefore left it where he put it, knowing that the bills would be paid, and he could replace it. He had made one hole to fill up another. The funds pertaining to last year, he says, should have been sent to the chief commissary of subsistence at San Antonio, Texas, on June 30, but he had been directed not to send any funds until further orders, as the chief was about to go on a tour of inspection, and consequently funds for three months accumulated.

On June 1 he received a telegram directing him to turn over all funds to the chief of staff as soon as practicable. He was required by law to transact all money in checks only, but succeeded in getting checks for only about one-third of the amount in his hands.

With the expectation of getting the checks, he made up his statement of funds on Sunday morning, July 10, so as to show that the money was en route to San Antonio. He expected to send both in the same mail on Monday. He failed to get the checks, and did not send the statement, because it would have been a false return. When his quarters were searched, he found a note from the colonel of the iron bitters; they act so mildly and soothingly, never leaving any unpleasant after-effects, strengthening the organs of digestion, and permanently removing every symptom of ill health, languor and debility. No remedy in the east gives such good satisfaction as Brown's Iron Bitters, and all druggists can procure it for you. Don't be persuaded to use a substitute. This remedy contains no alcohol, and is the only preparation of iron that does not blacken the teeth."--Sun.

The apparatus for generating the steam is an ordinary nursery lamp, holding half a pint of the Medicated Fluid with a tube at the top to direct the Medicated Steam upon any point infested with insects. It is heated with a small spirit lamp beneath the boiler. For Dwellings, Hotels, Steam Ships, Restaurants, etc., nothing ever discovered equals this appliance. It is harmless to humankind; is inexpensive and simple in its use. While a most potent means for destroying vermin, it is the best disinfectant known and may be most effectively used to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, such as Yellow Fever, Scarlet Fever, Typhoid Fever, Diphtheria, Small Pox, &c. One trial is the best proof of the great advantages of this over all other appliances. For sale by Druggists and General Dealers.

Yesterday in the City—What was Done and Said by Home-Flies and Strangers—The Good and the Evil as Taken on the Fly—in and About the Courts and Departments.

MULE STEALING—Captain Connolly yesterday succeeded in recovering the mule stolen by Wilmouth and Dodd, an account of which was given by Captain Connolly and Bassett, who will be tried in a few days. The mule was found near Decatur and was returned by Captain Connolly to Mr. McRae, to whom it belonged.

LESS A FINGER—Yesterday evening W. M. Chambers, an employee of the Georgia railroad company, had his left hand badly crushed. Mr. Chambers was climbing cars at the Georgia railroad yard when his finger slipped, entered in the coupling and was crushed by the bumper. The index finger was so badly injured that it was found necessary to amputate it. Dr. Martin performed the operation.

STEALING CLOTHES—Officer Moss yesterday arrested Bob Davis, against whom the charge of larceny was booked. On Sunday Bob surreptitiously stole Johnson's money, on Decatur street, and stole some garments, took them to the dry goods store, and the clothes were found in the wild man of Boroone, one of the attractions under that canvas. A portion of the stolen goods was recovered.

A MERITED COMPLIMENT—A lady of refinement and culture, while visiting places of interest in Atlanta recently, called at the studio of the excellent artist and genius, Max Rego, to have the picture taken of her. Mrs. H. H. Davis remarked: "It is like life itself, and the sweet lips seem to be speaking." She stood with uplifted hand and looked long at the picture, and said: "I am sure that your artist has done well; her disposition is as lovely as her face. She carries sunshine wherever she goes. She is gentle, sympathetic, and pleasant under the most trying circumstances. I could not help but feel that she is good, and that she is pure. How much she is to be combined in one person. It is not surprising that her friends are so numerous."

ENTRIES CONSTITUTION: While we hear continually of the exposition, let us not be unmindful of the humble operatives of the cotton factory. We specially urge that they be not employed to late an hour on Saturday. At present Sunday forenoon is used by them for sleep and for cleaning their houses.

THE TRIBE FROM St. James Lodge, No. Five, Accepted Masons of Atlanta, Ga. Whereas, The promoted and painful solicitude of the Masonic fraternity, felt uniformly through the Masonic lodges of every state, in behalf of their brother Mason, James A. Garfield, late president of the United States of America; we, therefore, express ourselves at the horror, with a just indignation, at the awful crime of the assassin's hand, and sympathize with the affliction to bekened the pages of our great republic. Resolved, That we recognize in James A. Garfield all the elements of a true brother Mason, and that his death has been a great loss to the craft throughout the globe.

2. That St. James Lodge hereby extend to the bereaved household our deepest sympathy and most earnest condolences.

3. That we sympathize with the country, as well as brothers' household and craft, has lost a great patriot in the death of the widow's son.

On the Death of Garfield.

BY MARTIN MACMASTER.
All! Garfield, a patriot, a statesman, is left us at last. His suffering spirit, his sorrows are past. He has left us, and gone on a little before.

To greet us, to meet us, on your beautiful shore.

He was ready and waiting, to answer that call, Which sooner or later must come to us all.

Willing to stay, yet ready to go.

Calmly, he waited, God's will for to know.

For long dreary weeks, on his bed has he lain, Weary and worn, with anguish and pain.

But meekly and calmly, resigned to his lot, Like his Master, he bore it and murmured not.

Though you once wore the blue, and wore the gray: Oh! Garfield, we mourn thee, we miss thee to-day: For a true, noble soul from this world has sped, And a brother beloved lies cold and dead.

Like a hero he lived, like a martyr he died:

In affliction's sore furnace, full well he was tried: It is right, it is true, it is all for the best.

Hall of Atlanta Branch No 20, Catholic Knights of America, Atlanta, Ga., September 27, 1881—A calling meeting of the Knights of Columbus C. of A. held this day, the following preamble and resolutions upon the death of our beloved late president, James A. Garfield, were unanimously adopted:

We, the Knights of Columbus, in memory of the death of our beloved late president, James A. Garfield, wish to remember from our midst our chief magistrate, James A. Garfield; and

Whereas, His death was caused by a cowardly assassin by whom he was shot down at his post on July 2, 1881, and

Whereas, the said James A. Garfield, as chief magistrate of these United States in a short time by his integrity and uprightness, won the hearts of the people for himself a place in the hearts of all. Be it therefore resolved by branch No 20, C. of A. assembled,

1. That while we bemoan his humility in resignation to the office of President, we do nevertheless sustain him in his acts of disinterestedness.

2. That we have words insufficient to depict our horror of the crime or denounce the impious wrench which separated him from us.

3. That we tender to his bereaved family warmest sympathy, and fervently pray the Consoler of all the afflicted to inundate their hearts with that heavenly dew before which all sorrow must disappear.

4. That these resolutions be published in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, the official Advocate, Louisville, Ky., and a copy forwarded to the superintendents of the order for transmission to the headquarters of our martyred president.

Beautiful Things.

A report has been made, and during the week about Doughty's wonderful display of elegant glass goods, took it upon himself to visit this emporium of fashion. It is truly a place where everything that is elegant to adorn a woman can be bought. Whether it is a costly diamond bracelet, a diamond brooch, a velvet silk, satin, beaded cashmere, trimmings, etc., but to tell the truth a description is beyond the ability of a quill driver, and only Mr. D. himself or some one of his assistants can do justice to it. While passing through the house I heard customers along the counters saying: "It is not this success, and does not surpass any stock in the city?" Mr. Doughty readily answered: "Yes, for a case such as this, his business has made him master of the situation and won for him an enviable position in the mercantile field. This is a house that not only Atlanta but the state of Georgia should be proud of."

While passing through the house I heard customers along the counters saying: "It is not this success, and does not surpass any stock in the city?" Mr. Doughty readily answered: "Yes, for a case such as this, his business has made him master of the situation and won for him an enviable position in the mercantile field. This is a house that not only Atlanta but the state of Georgia should be proud of."

A report has been made, and during the week about Doughty's wonderful display of elegant glass goods, took it upon himself to visit this emporium of fashion. It is truly a place where everything that is elegant to adorn a woman can be bought. Whether it is a costly diamond bracelet, a diamond brooch, a velvet silk, satin, beaded cashmere, trimmings, etc., but to tell the truth a description is beyond the ability of a quill driver, and only Mr. D. himself or some one of his assistants can do justice to it. A LITTLE DIFFICULTY

That Almost Promised to the Dignity of Riot.

At the last of the immense throng was entering the opera house, yesterday evening, a difficulty occurred which came near ending in a riot of great magnitude.

Among the police stationed at the opera house were officers Strong and Christopher, who were instructed to keep the pavilion clear in order to allow the audience to pass in without being crushed to death. Their mission had nearly been completed, when John Burke, a negro boy, who came to Atlanta from Griffin, rode into a white lane off the main walk, in order to gain the stairway leading to the opera house, but just as he was bounding up the steps, Officer Christopher saw the boy, and grabbed Burke for the purpose of taking him to the caboose. When the officer first grabbed the boy he jerked away, but the second time Christopher grabbed him and finally succeeded in getting his nippers on his arm. During the affair several darkies attempted to interfere, but they were driven back by the crowd around him and by pushing the police away. They continued to do even after the arrest and until Captain Bagby entered the entire mob followed him from around the policemen and their prisoner. When the police began this task there was a general resistance and several blows were thrown.

Those who rendered their chief aid yesterday were Officers Burdin, Mainly, Simonsen, Reid, McEvoy, Morrison, and Mulligan, and Captains Christopher, Parrish, Baird, Menkin, Denhard, Norman, Crim, Thompson, Buchanan, Joyner, Lynch, Goodson, Moon, Steerman, Moss, Foute, Sheridan, McWilliams, King, Russell, Breuning, Spear, Thurman.

THE CITY POLICE.

An Able and Most Efficient Body of Men.

Atlanta may well be proud of her police force. It is composed of men of intelligence, integrity and unsurpassed devotion to duty. This latter fact was illustrated forcibly yesterday when the great crowds thronged the streets. Nearly every member of the morning watch, which goes off duty at 1 o'clock, remained up and at work during the afternoon, and while not actually on duty were of really performing patrol duty. These officers knew that their services would be needed, and their great desire was to be of service to the city, and their great desire is in their hearts to aid in policing the city on the extraordinary occasions. The speedy and efficient manner in which the riot of yesterday was quelled is a credit to the police force. General Anderson is an officer whom any city might be proud of. Calm and collected under all circumstances, with a heart bold as a lion.

Officers Strong and Baird are good men.
